

washingtonpost.com > Nation > BlogPost

Anchored by Melissa Bell | About | Get Updates: Twitter Facebook Like 967 | XML RSS Feed

ABOUT BLOGPOST

Melissa Bell anchors BlogPost, The Washington Post's sounding board for news and conversation that's reverberating in your world -- online, on TV, and in your community.

THE BLOGPOST MENU

- Daily Catch: Trawling the day's web trends.
What the Post?: You have to click it to believe it.
Your Take: Get in on the conversation.
Picture Shows: Photos and videos that move us

SEARCH THIS BLOG

Search input field with 'Go' button

RECENT POSTS

- Halloween costumes for pets, Juan Williams and the First Amendment: This week's top news tweets
Blog surfaces to counter Juan Williams's notions of 'Muslim garb'
WikiLeaks release reports detailing abuse, civilian deaths, Iranian aid
Defund NPR radio? Who's funding it anyway?
Gordon Pinsent reads Justin Bieber, and other old men who mock youth

Entries By Category

- Picture Shows
The Daily Catch
What the Post?
Your Take
Full Category Archive

Entries By Date

- Full Weekly Archive

Blog surfaces to counter Juan Williams's notions of 'Muslim garb'

A Tumblr blog surfaced today with a short and simple message: "I will post pictures of Muslims wearing all sorts of things in an attempt to refute that there is such a thing as 'Muslim garb' or a Muslim look."

Iman wears a red jacket only she could get away with. (Jason Kempin/Getty Images for HSN)

In a response to fired NPR analyst Juan Williams's comments on a Fox News show, the Tumblr blog 'Pictures of Muslims Wearing Things' posts photos of famous Muslims, from Yusuf Islam (formerly Cat Stevens) to Shahrukh Khan, and describes their outfits.

"Dave Chappelle is Muslim. He is wearing ruffles and polyester," one entry reads. Another says: "This is Pai Hsien-Yung. He comes from a Muslim background, and was influenced by Mister Rogers' cardigans from a young age."

Not only does it provide fashion advice, but it also offers up an impressive list of famous Muslims, from actor Aasif Mandvi to the model Iman.

By Melissa Bell | October 22, 2010; 6:10 PM ET

Categories: What the Post?

Save & Share: [Social media icons]

Previous: WikiLeaks release reports detailing abuse, civilian deaths, Iranian aid
Next: Halloween costumes for pets, Juan Williams and the First Amendment: This week's top news tweets

Comments

SOURCE:THE NEW REPUBLIC, 1986, pp. 18-22.

A bitter controversy has broken out in Washington over a column by Richard Cohen in the Washington Post Magazine. Cohen reports that certain jewelry stores in Washington admit customers only through a buzzer system, and that some store owners use this system to exclude young black males on the grounds that these people are most likely to commit a robbery.

If you were a jewelry store owner, would you use your buzzer system to exclude young black males? You might take other factors into account - not just age and sex, but style of dress and time of day - but would you ever take race into consideration as well? Whatever you yourself would do, is taking race into consideration in these circumstances racist? Understandable? Both? Neither?

Suppose you were a cabdriver cruising for customers in the middle of the night. Or a woman about to get into an elevator with a stranger in a residential apartment building. How does your decision or your analysis change in these circumstances?

====
Here is what the I-get-nervous-when-I-see-Muslims-in-veil said

Neither black nor white store owners are in business to display the virtues of admitting people of all colors, creeds, and fashions to their stores. They are in business to make money. I would want to take precautions to prevent robbery; I would look closely at people entering the store. The race of a potential customer would be one factor among many to be considered as I girded myself against

RSS Feed

Subscribe to The Post

© 2010 The Washington Post Company

Ways you can get us

Mobile
Newsletter & alerts
RSS
Facebook
Twitter

Podcasts
Widgets
Post Store
Photo Store
Washington Post Live

Website

About us
Work for us
Site map
Topics Index
Search terms
Make us your homepage
Corrections

Newspaper

About The Post
Subscribe
Home delivery service
e-Replica
PostPoints

Company

Post Company web sites
Advertise
In the newspaper
On the web site
Feedback
Send us your thoughts

Partners

© 1996-2010 The Washington Post Company | User Agreement and Privacy Policy | Rights and Permissions

Help | Contact Us